

Viagra An Effective Male Impotence Treatment

Viagra is a male impotence treatment, which is absorbed and processed rapidly by the body and is usually taken 30 minutes to 1 hour before intercourse. Viagra is an effective male impotence treatment and stays for four long hours in the system.

Results vary from people to people depending on the cause of erectile dysfunction, but studies have shown that Viagra is effective in 75% of all cases. It helps men with erectile dysfunction associated with diabetes mellitus (57%), spinal cord injuries (83%), and radical prostatectomy (43%).

Therefore, if you have erection problems, you can get Viagra male impotence treatment. You will be able to get rid of your erection problems even if you have diabetes, spinal cord injuries, and radical prostatectomy with the help of Viagra male impotence treatment.

How does Viagra work as male impotence treatment?

Viagra contains sildenafil citrate, which belongs to a class of drugs called phosphodiesterase inhibitor. Viagra is a potent male impotence treatment and a selective inhibitor of cGMP specific phosphodiesterase type 5 (PDE5), which is responsible for degradation of cGMP in the corpus cavernosum found in the penis.

If you take Viagra, there is an increase in the levels of cGMP in the corpus cavernosum. However, there is only one hitch in this; Viagra will not work as a male impotence treatment unless there is sexual stimulation. You will get strong erections with Viagra male impotence treatment only if there is some sort of sexual stimulation.

What are the benefits of Viagra?

Viagra is a male impotence treatment, which helps men in achieving and maintaining erections until the end of sexual activity. Many people have serious misconceptions about Viagra and think of Viagra as not only male impotence treatment but also much more. Following are some of the other hyped up benefits of Viagra:

Viagra as an aphrodisiac

Many men think that Viagra is a sexual stimulant or aphrodisiac and will increase their libido and make them have sexual feelings. However, Viagra is only a male impotence treatment and does nothing to increase your sexual desire.

Viagra as a birth control pill

Viagra is also thought as birth control pill! There cannot be a bigger misconception than this about Viagra. Male impotence treatment and birth control pill are two completely different things. Viagra can only enhance erections and that is all to it.

Viagra as a cure for male impotence

Viagra is a temporary solution for male impotence and does nothing to cure your erectile dysfunction. The effects of Viagra male impotence treatment last not more than four hours. Once the working of Viagra stops in your body, you are back to square one and you have to take Viagra again next day an hour before sex.

Therefore, do not take Viagra for all the above-mentioned reasons. Viagra is a male impotence treatment only. If you take Viagra for any other reason than as male impotence treatment, you will be disappointed. So talk to a doctor and get a prescription for Viagra as male impotence treatment.
